

Cannabis vs Hemp

Both hemp and cannabis come from the Cannabis sativa plant. In 2018 Congress passed the Farm Bill, which created two separate categories of Cannabis sativa: Cannabis, and hemp. According to the law, anything >.3% THC by dry weight is considered Cannabis, and anything containing <.3% by dry weight is hemp. Since Delta 9 products are derived from hemp and contain <.3% THC, they are (legally speaking) NOT cannabis products, they are hemp products. This means they can be sold and served in places other than dispensaries in most states including New Jersey.

Delta 9 Beverages FAQ

What is Delta-9?

Delta 9 is a form of THC—that's an intoxicating cannabinoid found in cannabis and hemp plants. THC beverages, are created using a process to break the extracted THC down into super tiny particles, and then the particles are suspended in refreshing seltzers, bold sodas, teas and energy drinks

What's the difference between THC and CBD?

While both are found in cannabis plants, they interact with the body differently. One main difference is that THC produces a euphoric state while CBD does not.

Do accounts need any special licensing to sell Delta-9 Products?

No, at the time of this documents creation you do not need any special licensing to carry Delta-9 products.

Do accounts have to check ID's?

Yes, consumers need to be 21+ to purchase ALL Delta-9 Products. We will be including verbiage on every RPD Hemp Invoice to ensure each retailer agrees to only sell to 21+ patrons.

Can accounts order Hemp Products via the Retailer Portal?

Yes, there will be a drop down to toggle between RPD Beer & RPD Hemp.

Will Hemp Product be on the same invoice as Beer/Spirits?

No, Hemp product will be on a separate invoice and will need to be paid separately.

Can Accounts go on COD if their Hemp invoice isn't paid?

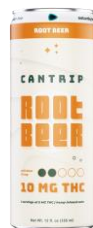

They will not go on COD as we know it in the Alcohol Business, but if they don't pay their Hemp invoice, we will not deliver Hemp product to the account. They will still be able to receive Alcohol product from us and other wholesalers.

Can we sell to N/A accounts?

We can, but we are looking to maximize our current account base at the start of distributing Delta 9 Beverages.
